1. A Soviet Zone police school was established in the former refugee camp of EGGENIN near TORGESLOW (N 54°4'28") in early June 1949.
2. The first personnel to be trained at this school were about five hundred young men, between 17 and 19 years of age, who either had been compulsorily inducted into the Soviet Zone police or joined voluntarily.
3. About 15 percent of the trainees were expelled from the school by a political screening commission, for reasons of political unreliability (social background).
4. The EGGENIN police school is said to be assigned directly to the German Administration of the Interior. Administrative services for the school are provided by the Mecklenburg Government, SCHWERIN.
